

Steve Bishop Early Careers Award 2021

Application deadline 31st July 2021

Calling all fledgling animal scientists and technologists

Sponsored by KTN, this scholarship is aimed at those in the early stages of their animal science career (postgraduate student or within three years of graduating with a PhD, or those working in commerce or industry with an equivalent level of experience without necessarily having a PhD).

Worth up to £5,000, the award is for specific short research programmes and/or training opportunities in the UK, or overseas, with a new academic or industrial partner. The overall aim is to help support and develop a new partnership rather than a piece of work with a current partner or organisation. In some circumstances, the award may be used to part-fund projects. Funds can be used in any relevant animal science sector.

The successful fellows will have the opportunity to present the outcomes of their awards to leading figures from the animal science community at the next global annual conference – BSAS 2022, in Nottingham on the 12th – 14th April (and the associated early-careers day), including submission of abstract.
